

NEW YORK STRIKE MAY NOT BE CALLED

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Sept. 6.—Traction officials today expressed their belief that there would be no strike on the elevated and subway lines of New York. They declared that the hesitation of the carmen's union leaders, after interborough officials had flatly turned down their demands and refused to make any concessions whatever, indicated weakness.

The fact that William B. Fitzgerald, organizer of the union, had called another strike mass meeting of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employees last Friday had voted to strike, was pointed out as evidence that the union men were not sure of their ground.

No official development in the subway and the elevated situation was probable until tonight's meeting. Mayor Mitchell will not be back at his office until tomorrow and at the Public Service Commission offices it was stated that Fitzgerald's threatened complaint to that body had not been lodged, though Chairman Oscar Straus returned to New York yesterday.

Statements issued by Fitzgerald declared the men were prepared to fight to a finish for their demand that the interborough surrender the "master and servant" contracts, but the union leaders' apparent willingness to trust their cause to Mayor Mitchell and the Public Service Commission gave the traction people hope.

In the meantime, interborough officials were not idle in their strike-breaking preparations. Strikebreakers were on duty at all principal subway and elevated stations, ready to operate trains in the event the union men should strike.

The no strike prediction of the railway officials was answered by Organizer Fitzgerald who declared that the men would go out between 1 and 2 o'clock tomorrow morning unless there was immediate intervention by Mayor Mitchell and the Public Service Commission.

There will be two meetings of the elevated and subway employees at 8 and 12 o'clock tonight when a strike vote will be taken.

"I am sure the men will vote unanimously for a strike and that they will want to go out at once," said Fitzgerald. "I am trying to keep faith with Mayor Mitchell, whom I assured during the traction troubles last August, that I would give a chance to act in the event of the future trouble."

PARALYSIS CASE ON GREENKILL AVE.

Sophie Oniker, 11 Years Old, of No. 139 Greenkill Avenue Stricken With Disease—Two Guards Stationed at House.

Late Tuesday afternoon it was reported to the health officials that a case of infantile paralysis had broken out at the home of William Oniker, No. 139 Greenkill avenue, the patient being Sophie, the eleven-year-old daughter. The report of the case as filed with Dr. Frank A. Johnston, the health officer, shows that the patient became ill on September 1. The girl had not been out of town nor so far as could be learned associated with any strangers. The girl had been rather closely confined to the house and yard. The adults of the family had not been away from home. No record was obtained of visitors in the immediate neighborhood.

The sanitary committee of the health board when informed of the case held a special meeting on Tuesday evening at which time the committee ordered two guards placed on duty at the Oniker house. Every precaution is being taken to prevent the spread of the disease.

As far as known the case is not a serious one.

ONE BALL HIT ONE COP IN EYE

Why Policeman Phinney is Patrolling Smith Avenue Instead of Wall Street Today—Eyes Were Not Made to Stop Baseballs.

"Eyes were not made to stop baseballs" was the bulletin handed out today when an anxious friend wanted to know why Policeman Charles Phinney was not patrolling Wall street. In fact it gradually leaked out that Officer Phinney had met with an accident and it was thought best to put him on a back street beat rather than in the business section.

It seems that Tuesday afternoon the police squad under the leadership of Captain Jack Boyd held its first baseball practice for the big game September 13. Practice was held at Madison field. During the practice one baseball flew in the wrong direction and was suddenly stopped by the eye of Policeman Phinney with sad results to the eye. The ball was not injured, but the officer's eye was somewhat damaged.

Just how it happened is not known. It is said that Officer Phinney was busy stopping grounders that were batted in his direction by another officer, and did not see another man of the squad knock the second ball in his direction. The ball flew through the air like a bullet and would have been good for a home run if Phinney's eye had not intervened.

Still another version is that Policeman Phinney who is nifty with his dukes was practicing at stopping a batted ball with each hand, and in the excitement he forgot himself and reached for one ball with both hands instead of keeping the other hand free to catch the other ball which was batted in his direction at the same time.

Every one knows that it is hard to down one of the local officers, and the mere fact that a batted ball hit him in the eye did not deter Policeman Phinney from reporting for duty as usual. It was thought best, however, to place him on a back street until his eye recovers its usual color.

The fact that Phinney was injured will not keep him out of the big game and his friends may look for him to perform wonders when the umpire calls, "play ball."

The response to the solicitations of the men selling tickets has been prompt and judging from the number of tickets sold the grounds will be jammed when the game is called. Don't forget to buy a ticket and help swell the pension funds of both departments.

Red Seals Make Protest.

Editor Kingston Freeman.

Dear Sir:—In one of your columns last evening we notice that the Wilbur Reds state they are champions of the city by defeating the Mystic team 4 out of 6 games. It can be noted that the Reds have played two games with the Red Seals tied the score in the tenth inning, the Wilbur refused to play any more, kicked over a decision made by the umpire on a close play at third base when he called Red Seal man safe, which any umpire would do on a play like it. When the Reds were given time to continue the contest and refused to, the game was forfeited to the Red Seals, therefore the umpire's ruling stands. In the second game between the two teams the Reds won. It now stands one and one; therefore another game should be played between these teams to see who is better.

WATCHFUL WAITING—By Fred O. Seibel

VISITOR ENDED UP AS GUEST OF CITY

It Cost a Grayhaired Stranger Only $50 to See Kingston's Bright Lights—Trip Ended Near the Hubs of the Pig Pen—Last Dollar for a Taxi.

At an early hour Sunday morning Superintendent Thomas H. Edmonston, of the Kingston City Home, was aroused by some of the help and told that there was a stranger on the grounds whose conduct caused some alarm. The superintendent hastened out and proceeding to the pig pen as directed he found there a well-dressed, fine looking man leaning on the fence, apparently lost in serene contemplation of the beauties of nature just coming into view with the rising sun.

To a request as to his business on the grounds at that hour, the visitor returned only a bland smile but accepted an invitation to breakfast with alacrity. After the meal, he became more communicative.

"You have a fine place here," he said to Mr. Edmonston and the latter agreed with him, saying that it was one of the best located of any almshouse in the state.

"Almshouse?" said the visitor apparently jarred into his normal state of mind. "Almshouse? What am I doing at an almshouse?"

The superintendent then informed his visitor that he had put in an appearance on the grounds at dawn. Finally the guest began to laugh.

"It was that bartender," he softly ejaculated. He then pulled out a handsome watch whose hunting case was set with diamonds and looked at the time. He felt in another pocket and his face became a blank.

"I had fifty dollars when we started out to see the country last night," said the stranger sadly. He smiled again, however, and asked Mr. Edmonston if he would call a taxicab as he had scraped up a dollar in change in his pockets.

"Were you robbed?" sympathetically asked Mr. Edmonston.

"Oh, I wouldn't say that," said his guest. "The money's just gone."

"When the taxicab came, he gave the driver instructions to take him to a local hotel."

"I have a house in Elmira," he said in thanking Mr. Edmonston on his departure, "which cost $15,000, and when you come up there I want you to stop and see me."

Incidentally, the gray-haired stranger gave Mr. Edmonston his card and, with shoulders shaking over his odd experience, the guest of the City of Kingston climbed into his taxicab and went on his way rejoicing that things were no worse.

14-YEAR OLD BOY MAY BE CHAMPION

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Haverford, Pa., Sept. 6.—The spectre of a fourteen-year-old golfer carrying off the stellar honors in the national amateur tournament looms today before the seasoned veterans who are competing for the title.

The easy manner in which Bobby Jones, Jr., the Atlantic youngster, disposed of Eben Byers, in his first match of the tournament yesterday, makes it certain that he will be heard of before the tournament ends. Many golf enthusiasts predict that Jones will work his way into the semifinals.

Bob Gardner, champion, and Chick Evans, open champion, also won their first matches.

The pairings for today follow:

Max R. Marston, Baltusrol vs. Bob Gardner, Hinsdale; Robert T. Jones, Jr., Atlanta, vs. Frank W. Dwyer, Montclair; George A. Ormiston, Oakmont vs. Jess Guilford, Woodland; Oswald Kirkby, Englewood, vs. Garner W. White, Flushing; John W. Anderson, Swanow vs. Robert E. Hunter, Midwick; W. B. Smith, Pine Valley, vs. Charles Evans, Jr., Edgewater; D. Clarke Cockran, Baltimore, vs. Perry Adair, Atlanta; George Small, Baltimore vs. Cameron B. Buxton, Huntington.

SISTER ACCUSED BROTHER OF THEFT

Mrs. Minnie Anderson (Gibson) vs. William Mower Stole Her $8—Mrs. Mower Says he Didn't—Case Held Open.

William Mower, of Martin's Lane, was arrested on Tuesday afternoon on a warrant sworn out by his sister, Mrs. Minnie Anderson, who accused him of stealing her $8 which she had placed on the shelf in the kitchen. Both are colored. After hearing the story as told by the sister and brother this morning, Recorder Lang held the case open until Thursday morning so that more evidence could be produced.

According to Mrs. Anderson's story her husband gave her $8 on Sunday and told her to use the money to pay the rent and buy provisions. Labor Day morning she laid the money on the kitchen shelf under a book. That evening her brother, William, who boards with them, came home and started to wash up. He expected to go across the river to Rhinebeck to spend the holiday. She claims she saw him take the money from the shelf and put it in his pocket.

On the other hand William claimed that when he came home from work he found two strange "shinies" as he termed them in the house. He said one was standing on the porch and the other was in the kitchen, where his sister was washing the dishes. In order to get to the kitchen sink after some water to put in the wash basin he had to brush by the "big shine" and he did so and asked his pardon. Later William said his sister went in the front room and played the graphophone for the company. By that time he had got dressed and was ready to go out for the day when his sister said that the money on the shelf was gone. He advised her to look around for it. He said when she accused him of taking it he pulled out $3.60, which was all the money he had. He said he had borrowed $3 from his boss. He told her if she did not think that was all the money he had to search him. He denied emphatically that he had taken the money from the kitchen shelf.

His sister was equally positive that he had done so.

There was no question raised but that the sister had the $8, but the question for Recorder Lang to decide is who stole it?

Port Ewen.

Port Ewen, Sept. 6.—Mr. and Mrs. William Haines and Miss Minnie Van Valkenburg of Kingston were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Van Keuren Sunday.

Rev. J. Barker of Toronto, Canada, who has been the guest of Mrs. Christina Warner on Broadway, has returned home.

John, the four year old son of Anthony Pendergrast of Sacket street, fell off of the dock at lower Port Ewen Monday afternoon into the Hudson river and was drowned before assistance could get there. The little fellow was fishing on the dock with his brothers and they had run home and left him alone. This is one of the carelessness of parents who allow their children, all ages, to roam about the streets in front of automobiles and anywhere they please. There should be a law compelling parents to keep their children at home unless their parents go with them.

Miss Martha Vanderborg, who has been the guest of Mrs. George Shultis on Broadway, returned to her home in Maiden Tuesday.

Esopus Council, No. 42, Sons and Daughters of Liberty, will meet this evening at 8 o'clock in Hutton's Hall on Broadway.

Earl Proper, is employed by Reginald Van Leuvan, the tesserial artist on Broadway.

The regular monthly business meeting of the Ladies Aid Society of the Methodist Church will be held in the chapel Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

WILSON GIVEN POWER OF REPRISAL

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Sept. 6.—Chancelleries are deeply concerned over the drastic enactments contained in the administration's shipping bill, and in the revenue measure approved by the senate early today, placing retaliatory weapons in the hands of President Wilson. Through their diplomatic representatives here they are following closely this legislation, which will permit President Wilson to substitute for passive diplomacy a policy of reprisal against nations discriminating against American trade. The action of this government is revolutionary and entirely unexpected. It permits the president to back up steamship mails and boycott demands in a way that will prove distinctly embarrassing to the Entente Allies.

While unofficial suggestions have been made by certain of the embassies that these provisions violate existing trade agreements, they have not been received with any degree of warmth at the State Department. It has been pointed out that the powers given the President under the proposed laws are in every way discretionary. He can utilize them if the necessity arises but they can be put into effect in the manner recognized by international law.

The fact that these amendments have been tattered by Senators James Thomas and Phelan, thick and thin supporters of the administration, is accepted as indicating that they have the approval of the President and Secretary of State Lansing. It has been known for some time that the delay on the part of Great Britain and France in giving heed to the protest against the unnecessary detention and rifling of American mails to and from this country has been a source of irritation to the State Department. But there was nothing that this government could do under the circumstances. If the provisions read into the revenue bill remain unchanged—and officials expect that they will—then the administration can enforce a reply that will be satisfactory to it and end the intolerable interference with mails that are in no way subject of the operations of warfare.

BOICEVILLE FOLKS HOLD A REUNION

The annual Boiceville reunion and picnic held by residents of the town of Olive and vicinity took place in Lambert's pine grove at Boiceville on Labor Day. While the number of people present was not as large as at former reunions on account of the absence of children due to the infantile paralysis scare, still they made up in enthusiasm for what they lacked in numbers.

The morning was taken up as usual in renewing old acquaintances which perhaps is the most enjoyable feature of these reunions.

After lunch short exercises were opened by the entire assembly singing a hymn and "America," after which C. Lambert introduced the Rev. Raymond P. Ingersoll, pastor of the Baptist Church at Rhinebeck, and a former pastor of the Shokan Baptist Church, who spoke in a happy vein of his old associations with the people of Olive and of his love for the country in the immediate vicinity. Rev. Ingersoll's talk, while short, was a witty one and he held the strict attention of his hearers.

The next speaker was C. Lambert, through whose interest and generosity these annual reunions have become possible and who reminded the residents of the fact that they lived in the beauty spot of the world. He had travelled, he said, all over the world and no spot made a more lasting impression upon him than this spot in the Catskills where he had settled and made his home. Mr. Lambert spoke very feelingly of these annual reunions and the pleasure which they gave him to prepare for and attend. He closed his address by extending an invitation to be present at the next annual reunion.

Millard Davis, the popular New York city lawyer, and a former resident of Olive and vicinity, then spoke to the assemblage of the great debt they owed Mr. Lambert for the use of the beautiful grove and numberless other generousities which he extended to them for the purpose of making this reunion the success it always was. The esteem in which Mr. Lambert is held by the old residents was evidenced by the applause which greeted these remarks. Mr. Davis also spoke in a very pointed manner of the great opportunity the present residents were losing in not using their efforts to the best advantage in farming, etc., especially in the marketing and growing of fine apples for which the country thereabouts is especially well adapted. Mr. Davis closed his address by suggesting three cheers for Mr. Lambert, which were given with a vim.

The exercises were then brought to a close after which all returned to a close after which all having had a very enjoyable reunion and looking forward to many occasions in the future.

Judge Hasbrouck Denies Motion to Try Case in New York.

Judge Hasbrouck has handed down a decision denying the motion made before him last Saturday to change the place of trial from Ulster county to New York county of the suit brought by John F. Herbert of this city against the Otto Gerda Company of New York City, Elhiemann, Hale & Wright of New York city appeared for the defendant and the motion; Amos Van Eetten of this city appeared for Mr. Herbert and opposed.

In a memorandum, Judge Hasbrouck says:

There is no question but that a contract for the purchase of certain bales of bamboo and reeds was made. There is a question whether that contract was rescinded. This constitutes the issue. The contract was the result of correspondence contemplating a delivery in Jersey City. The place of the transaction therefore may be held to neither in New York or Kingston. We have therefore left but consideration of the number of witnesses and the promotion of the ends of justice. Where witnesses are employees as the defendant's witnesses are in the case at bar.

Quinn v. Brooklyn Heights R. R. Co., 88 A. D. 57, and where it is apparent that a trial can be had more speedily in Ulster county than in New York the ends of justice would not be promoted by a change.

INCREASED NEED FOR SKILLED HELP

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Albany, Sept. 6.—According to the New York State Bureau of Employment there was an increased demand for workers at the five branch offices of the state public employment bureau during the month of August over the month of July. This is taken to indicate that the industries of the state are active. The report specifies the locations where special demands are being made for particularly qualified men.

It is pointed out that the five offices placed a greater number of workers in positions during August than in July. This was due to more applicants applying for work. "The greatest demand was for common labor," continues the report, "in construction work, paying as high as $3 for an eight-hour day. Many contracts for road construction were let early in August which has increased the demand for the pick and shovel men. There is still a big demand for factory workers, both male and female."

It is explained that many firms which formerly relied upon getting experienced help only, are now making an effort to train inexperienced workers and attention is called to the fact that now that the harvesting season is over, the demand for farm hands is not so great, although dairy farms continue to desire help and pay as high as $35 a month.

"This is the season for the 'float-er,'" adds the report. "It is surprising the number of men who are drifting from town to town working in each place only long enough to earn transportation to the next."

"This is not confined to the ordinary hobo, who is usually an unskilled laborer; there has been an abnormally large number of skilled mechanics going from place to place. This is particularly true of the machinist who is engaged in munition work."

Reference is made to the need of skilled mechanics in Brooklyn and for tool and die makers and expert machine hands as well. There is also a need of strong factory laborers at wages ranging from $12 to $15 a week. Stress is laid upon the fact that it is impossible to fill positions for office and errand boys at $5 a week and up, while the call for restaurant and hotel help is almost constant. The same conditions exist in the women's department, where it is difficult to fill positions in practically every line of work, including factory, domestic, hotel and even office work.

In the Albany district the demand for office help is increasing, there being an especially large number of vacancies for bookkeepers and accounting and stenographers. Skilled workers, such as carpenters, woodworkers and mechanics are in great demand, while the demand for machinists and tool makers has fallen considerably. In Buffalo there was an exceptionally heavy demand for common laborers and female day workers. Many calls were received for factory and hotel and restaurant workers which the office was unable to fill.

Mr. Phoebe A. Cobb, Past State to its executive session.

Councillor and Mrs. Cornelia J. Auchmoody were the efficient chairmen of the local committee. Mrs. Cobb felicitously introducing the speakers of the morning.

Mrs. Cobb, in calling the meeting to order, stated that the members of the various councils had gathered together primarily to review the work of the past year, and to enact such legislation as should prove most beneficial for the future welfare of the organization.

The entire assemblage then rose and sang "America," and the Rev. George M. Cranston, pastor of the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church pronounced the invocation. The salute of the flag followed, as was most fitting for the Daughters of America, and the assemblage then listened to a brief history of the city of Kingston, as interestingly told by Mayor Palmer Canfield, Jr. After welcoming the Daughters of America to Kingston, Mayor Canfield said we were proud of our city for what it has been, for what it is and for what we hope it will be. He considered Kingston one of the strongest links in the chain of American Independence, and said that though we called it the Old Colonial City, its history far antedated the colonial period. As the Indian village of Atharhaston, its charm was expressed in that name, meaning "beautiful place." Hendrick Hudson founded here one of the three original trading posts, the other two on the Hudson being New York and Albany. In 1633 the Indians made a deed of gift, turning the village over to the Dutch and it was thereafter in the possession of first the Dutch, then the English; again the Dutch, and lastly the English, until the time of the Revolutionary War. Mayor Canfield also briefly recounted some of the earliest colonial history of the city, and said that he liked to think of Kingston as the bridge to the America. Whatever of past success Kingston enjoyed, the speaker considered due to its loyalty, its unity, its deeds rather than its words. The mayor considered it especially fitting that such an organization as the Daughters of America should be welcomed to our historic city.

The program was here pleasantly varied by the introduction of a brilliant piano solo, played by Miss Marguerite Hutton, who was heartily applauded.

Senator Walton was next introduced by Mrs. Cobb, and he, too, offered his greetings to the audience assembled. Like the mayor he expressed pride in the traditions of this city and county which had in the past inspired a patriotism which he hoped would be emulated in the present and future. Considering the perplexing world problems of today Senator Walton said that never had there been such need of character and courage on the part of individuals making up our government as at this present time. While the individual depends upon the government, the government rests upon the individuals composing it. The senator expressed the feeling that to just such women and men as those before him, could the government look for the character and courage that should be for the further upbuilding of the nation. He then expressed the hope that those present from out of town, would be so pleasantly impressed only that to return for a visit, but that some of them might want to return to find a home here, where they would be heartily welcomed.

When Secretary Canfield had been introduced, he said that while he would echo the welcome of those prominent speakers who preceded him, his welcome would be of a very practical nature. However he did want to emphasize Senator Walton's invitation to make a home in Kingston, and was ready to offer the most cordial services of the Chamber of Commerce in helping any one to secure such a home or a good place of business and assured the young ladies that Kingston had also many most desirable and available young men. Mr. Canfield presented to the Daughters of America, little folders of Kingston, containing a map of the city, which he thought they might find of service in going about our city. Furthermore he called particular attention to two notable side trips which might be taken during the visit of the members, one the auto ride about the Ashokan reservation, the other the trip to Lake Mohonk. Arrangements had been made by the Chamber of Commerce with the various carages, whereby visitors might be taken on the first mentioned trip, at a cost of $1 each, and the speaker offered to assist in the arranging of either outing, with any who wished to enjoy these privileges. All of the addresses received the heartiest of applause.

State Councilor Mrs. Davis, then responded to the greetings, and caused much merriment by telling the gentlemen that the assembled body composed of delightful young women, capable bachelor girls, and charming widows, should feel particularly favored in having at hand to help out in the suggestion, in such matters: the mayor to see that the honorees were all right, and Secretary Canfield to assist in the finding of a home and business. Mrs. Davis then gave a very brief but comprehensive history of the Daughters of America, offering a few most interesting statistics, showing the rapid growth and far-reaching life of the organization. In closing, the speaker cordially thanked the speakers for their able addresses, and expressed the appreciation of the visitors of the hospitality of Kingston.

The first speaker was Mrs. Elizabeth P. Howe, national councilor, and the special guest of honor of the state council. Mrs. Howe told interestingly of the increasing numbers of members of the Daughters of America and the also increasing numbers of councils, and their reception as auxiliaries of the Junior Independent Order of Mechanics in many states. In the work and progress they had been greatly aided by their brothers.

The speaker pledged the fullest patriotism of the Daughters of America and closed with warm words of thanks and appreciation to the speakers and the city which they represented.

THE LADY ON THE LINKS.

Enjoying a Game of Golf With the Wife of Your Friend.

"She—Would you mind teeing up my ball? Thank you. Perhaps a little higher. John says I ought to have my tees lower, but somehow I never dare try. Shall I go? (She drives and goes about twenty feet.) How dreadful!"

He (cheerfully)—That's nothing! One never expects to play for the first three holes. (He drives and goes about twenty-two feet.) You see!

She—Never mind. What club would you use here?

He—The grass is pretty long. I think under the conditions I should use an iron.

She (calmly taking out her brasses)—Yes, I suppose I should, but one can always go so much farther with a brassie. (She tees the ball, which goes about ten feet.) How dreadful!

He—Never mind. (Savagely driving his ball with his iron out of the grass nearly a hundred yards.)

She—Wonderful! John says you play such a consistent game.

He—The last time I played with John it cost me $10.

She—What? You don't play for money, do you? John says—

He—Oh, never! I broke four clubs.

At the end of the eighteenth hole her score is 168. (He has a bad 110.)

She—it was awfully good of you to put up with me.

He—Good! The pleasure is mine. After all, it isn't your score that counts. It's the exercise.

She—Thank you so much. (Later to John.) He told me I played some simply wonderful shots and said I was developing a great game. There!

He—Of course you are dear. (Later to him.) Say, old man, how do you like trying to another man's wife instead of your own?—Life.

Woman.

A woman may be a fool—a sleepy fool, an agitated fool, a too awfully nervous fool—and she may even be simply stupid. But she is never dense. She's never made of wood, though and though, as some men are. There is a woman, always somewhere, a spring whatever men don't know about women (and it may be a lot or it may be very little), men and even fathers don't know that much. And that is why so many men are afraid of them.—Conrad

What Nothing Is.

If any man thinks that he can conceive well enough how there should be nothing, I will engage that what he thinks is, nothing is as much as anything as anything that he ever thought of in his life, as I'll engage that if he knew what nothing was it would be infinitely easier to him that it would not be. Absolute nothing is the atmosphere of all the comedians in the world.—Jonathan Edwards.

QUEER HUMAN NATURE.

How the Significance of Words May Change With the Years.

How the same word may have a different significance for the same man at different stages of his life is given in the following from the New York Post, as adapted and expanded from the French in the Paris Figaro:

Life.—At twenty: Days that are counting. At fifty: Days that are going.

The Heart.—At twenty: An organ whose frequent palpitations are due to strong emotion. At fifty: An organ whose frequent palpitations are due to indigestion.

The Truth.—At twenty: Something to be feared in the face of the whole world. At fifty: Something it is not always polite to tell.

Poetry.—At twenty: Something you read with eagerness and enthusiasm. At fifty: Something to quote.

Time.—At twenty: You imagine you never have enough of it. Therefore are always in a hurry. At fifty: You know you never have enough of it. Therefore never hurry.

A Muffler.—At twenty: A protection for one's dress shirt. At fifty: A protection for "that is under one's dress shirt."

The Hair.—At twenty: You shake it back off your forehead. At fifty: Comb it carefully down across your forehead.

Keys.—At twenty: A convenience used to open things with. At fifty: A convenience used to shut things with.

PRESIDENT FORMALLY ACCEPTS DEMOCRATIC NOMINATION FOR RE-ELECTION.

This picture shows President Wilson, standing on the veranda at Shadow Lawn, his summer home, speaking to the crowd after accepting the formal notification of his nomination by the Democratic party for re-election.

Evaporated Liquids.

Steam evaporating from boiling milk if condensed would become water. This may be seen in the manufacture of condensed milk, which is only ordinary milk boiled down until the water is out of it. If a liquid which contains solid bodies in solution be evaporated the solids are left behind. That this is so may be shown by adding to water that is to be distilled a trace of macerated and a little salt. The distilled water has no taste and is colorless. The magnets is generally deposited upon the sides of the boiling vessel.

The King's Way.

It was characteristic of the late King Edward VII. that he never showed too much or too little courtesy, but just enough to maintain his reputation of being the most gracious gentleman of Europe. Some years ago, on calling to the author of "The People's King," his majesty visited Aberdeen and invited the lord provost. At the luncheon which followed the king sat next to Mrs. Lyon, the wife of the lord provost, and noticed on the table the card denoting her place.

"I must alter this," the king said, smiling on the lady.

With his pencil he effaced the word Mrs. and in its place substituted Lady, and graciously handed the card to her newly made ladyship.

Sure Reward of Patience.

KINGSTON, N. Y., SEPT. 6, 1916.

There is little to surprise and less to satisfy the most earnest supporters of the President in the Shadow Lawn speech on acceptance. Almost every item therein had been anticipated, a difficult feat in itself when the unsurpassed switching facilities of Mr. Wilson's single track mind are considered. The narrowness of the partisanship which arrogates to the Democratic party all of the progress made since March, 1913, is only excelled by the audacity of his declaration that all of the pledges in the 1912 platform have been redeemed. The high cost of living is evidently no longer felt when one becomes an occupant of the White House; the single term plank is as conveniently forgotten or ignored. The denial of the constitutional right of the government to impose tariff duties save for revenue purposes only was another foundation plank at Baltimore in the face of which the President put over the provision for a tariff commission. It is typically Wilsonian reasoning that any such body could prove useful with its main functions limited to fixing a tariff for revenue purposes solely. The pledged economy of four years ago is also forgotten in the pork barrel extravaganzas such as have marked the Southern river and harbor raids on the Federal treasury. It is a wonderful memory with which the President is gifted that he can so accurately forget the embarrassing instances of broken promises with which the path of his administration is strewn.

Another glittering gem of rhetoric, certainly not of fact, is the President's expression on "the emancipation of business" which he undertakes to show has resulted from the fulfillment of Baltimore promises. The latest exhibition of "emancipation" under the President's leadership was the running up the white semaphores of surrender to the demands of a group of labor leaders connected with the greatest business of the republic. The assistance that the efforts of these men to compel the railroads to pay them their self-ordered rate of wages received from the White House is a lesson not lost on the entire country. The Wilson ideas of emancipation of business are in weird contrast to the ordinary rules of decent treatment and fair play. As for Mexico and our foreign relations, we are told that the nation that violates "the fundamental rights of humanity must expect to be called to account by direct challenge and resistance." This phrase ought to serve to good advantage in the humorous publications of Berlin or Mexico City. The "unspeakable Huerta" is again dragged from the grave to serve as a straw man to be punched for political purposes, but the President does not mention the number of Americans killed in Mexico since Carranza assumed to be the first chief. For what it leaves unsaid and for its extravagant claims, the Wilson speech is one of the most remarkable documents of its kind in our history. Its unblushing assurance in the face of a record which absolutely contradicts its statements, makes it plain that the President is making a desperate bluff in attempting to twist the evidence upon which his case will go to the people in November.

Men so situated as to be able to judge accurately of the matter are convinced that President Wilson has from the first been ambitious to be selected as arbitrator of the European quarrel. This desire has been reflected in his wabbling policy and evident fear of offending one side or the other. But his dream will never be realized. No nation, no more than any man, will submit to the arbitration of an individual whose method it is to decide first and hear evidence afterward. There is a close similarity between condemning Huerta and setting up Carranza without any evidence regarding the character and policies of either and siding with railroad employees in a wage dispute without taking the trouble to learn the essential facts of the situation. Were Woodrow the arbiter of European affairs it would be just like him to sit down in solitude and draw a map of the continent, incidentally appointing a commission to see how the new distribution of territory worked out. The fact that only war can prevent temporary settlements from becoming permanent would not disturb him in the least. He must realize that his action in the railroad dispute will in the end result in the worst industrial trouble this country ever had. It is unthinkable that millions of wage earners will submit indefinitely to a policy which increases the cost of their living in order that a comparatively few men no more skillful or harder-working than themselves may get an undue recompense. However, Mr. Wilson calculates that when the storm-cloud breaks he will not be a candidate for any office. Sacrificing national interests in hope of reaping personal benefit does not in this case come under the legal definition of treason, and the only way to punish it is by the discriminating use of the ballot.

SAUGERTIES.

Saugerties, Sept. 6.—The Pirate Canoe Club of Poughkeepsie, who have been camping at the picnic grounds on the upper Esopus for the past two weeks, left Sunday for their homes, after an enjoyable vacation.

Isaac Lazarus is ill at his home on Main street.

Counsel Fee But No Alimony.

Judge Hasbrouck has handed down a decision in the case of Etta Merriam against William D. Merriam an Albany county separation suit in which a motion recently was made before him for alimony and counsel fee by William E. Woodard of Albany for the plaintiff, and opposed by Frost, Daring & Warner of Albany for the defendant. In a memorandum Judge Hasbrouck says:

"The petitioner has not satisfied the court that the defendant has abandoned her. He claims to have provided a place for a home for her at Plattsburg and actually secured a pass for her transportation. If that be true no case is made for alimony, for the wife is obliged to follow her husband to the place he establishes as his dwelling place. She has recently inherited some money and must be improvident if in the face of her disagreement with her husband she has expended it all. The basic fact upon which her right to relief depends can only be ascertained by a trial. To enable her to prosecute her cause an allowance of $75 is made. Alimony under the circumstances is refused."

TWENTY AND TEN YEARS AGO.

Sept. 6, 1896.—St. Mary's Church consecrated. Solemn high mass celebrated. Archbishop Corrigan assisting at the services.

Alexander Lown, a member of the One Hundred and Fifty-sixth regiment, died at Fort Ewen, aged 54 years.

Kingston City Railroad appealed from Judge Parker's decision giving Colonial Railroad right over tracks on Broadway.

Sept. 6, 1906.—Charles McLean died at his home on Hasbrouck avenue, aged 48 years.

John M. Mayer received an order from American Express Company for fifty-five new sleighs.

S. M. Gray's warehouse at Saugerties burglarized.

"There are two sides to every argument." "Two sides represent the minimum. Some arguments sound as if there were as many sides as there are speakers."—Washington Star.

"When we went across in 1912," said Mrs. Blunderoy, "we didn't know one word of French or German." "Didn't you find it hard to make them understand what you wanted?" asked the caller. "Indeed we did," responded the old lady. "Why, my husband had to hire a man to go about with us as interpreter."—Boston Transcript.

Team Needed Him.

"Well, sir, what do you want?" snapped the irritable gentleman farmer.

"I'm the captain of the Grasshoppers, sir," explained the youth, unceasingly. "I've come to ask you for the use of the home medder for football this season."

"What! You—you—!" "Our treadin' on't 'ud save yer the trouble o' rollin' it next spring, sir," hastily put in the youth, with a view to calming the angry farmer.

At that moment he received a kick that sent him sprinting down the road at 12 miles an hour.

A few minutes later he again appeared before the owner of the home meadow. Creeping up cautiously, he said with a gasp:

"Gosh! you can kick, sir! Will yer join our team?"—Chicago Herald.

The Bishop Dodged.

A bishop recently addressed a large assembly of Sunday school children and wound up by asking in a very paternal way: "And now, is there any little boy or any little girl who would like to ask me a question?" A thin, shrill voice at the back of the room called out:

"Please, sir, why did the angels walk up and down Jacob's ladder when they had wings?" "Oh! ah, yes—I see," said the bishop, "and now, is there any little girl who would like to answer this question?"—Tit-Bits.

Mentioned the Wrong Foot.

Mrs. Aytoun wanted new shoes, so she went into a shop where an obliging assistant brought out a selection for her to try on.

"That's strange, madam," said the assistant, "but your feet are larger than the other."

Bristling with rage, the lady left that shop and sought another. Here, again, the assistant failed to find a pair which would do.

"How curious, madam!" he said. "One of your feet is smaller than the other."

And with a beaming smile Mrs. Aytoun bought two pairs.—Buffalo Evening News.

His Clutch Slipped.

Harold, aged 4, was trudging the distance of many blocks with his father to Sunday school, and the long tramp was almost too much for him. The father, glancing back, noticed the small boy's fatigue and slackening his pace, asked:

"Am I walking too fast, son?" "No," returned the small boy, puffing and panting breathlessly, "it's me, papa."—The Christian Herald.

A Kaiser Story.

One of the funniest stories of the kaiser appears in a Glasgow contemporary. It gives a conversation which is said to have taken place a few weeks ago between his Imperial Majesty and the Crown Prince.

Willie: "Father, when started the war? Was it Emperor Joseph or King George, or had the King of Bulgaria or the Sultan of Turkey a hand in it?" "No, no, my son," said the kaiser, "none of them had anything to do with it. There was a man named Roosevelt came from America to see me. I let him see my great army, my great navy, my great guns, and my huge stores of munitions. He gave me a pat on the shoulder and said, 'Bill, you can conquer the world,' and I like a blooming fool, believed him."

Changed the Saying.

A celebrated specialist once attended a young medical student through a long illness. Though the embryo doctor knew that, according to professional etiquette, physicians do not accept fees from each other, he felt that, since he was only a student and had taken so much of the famous doctor's valuable time, he ought to request a bill for services rendered, says the Chicago Herald.

When he approached the matter, however, the gruff old man spoke out brusquely: "Don't you know the etiquette? Don't you eat dog?" "Yes, sir, I'm well aware of that," replied the young fellow. "But, you see, I'm not a doctor; I'm only a medical student." "Well, then, if you like it any better, dog doesn't eat puppy!"

New Music Store.

Sign painters are busy putting the gold leaf lettering on the window of the store in the new Weisberg building on Fair street which will be occupied by the Reichard Music Company, Inc. The new company will run the store as a piano salesroom and music store. The lower store next the Ulster Garage will be occupied by Mr. Weisberg's tailoring establishment which will move from its present quarters across the street.

CITY FATHERS TO BORROW $27,000

At Request of Mayor Canfield the Common Council Decides to Raise that Amount on Short Time Notes —Will Not Affect Tax Rate.

At the regular meeting of the common council, held on Tuesday evening at the city hall a communication was received from Mayor Can-field calling attention to the fact that $7,000 was needed by the health board to pay expenses incident to fighting the infantile paralysis epidemic, and that there was also needed $20,000 for current expenses. The communication from the mayor was as follows:

Office of the Mayor.
Kingston, N. Y., Sept. 5, 1916.
To the Common Council.

Gentlemen:—A resolution passed by Your Honorable Body at its meeting held on August 1, 1916, authorizing the transfer from the health fund the sum of $1,000 to be used as an emergency fund for immediate cash payments for urgent expenditures made necessary in efforts of the board of health to prevent the spread of disease known as infant paralysis, also provided "that the mayor communicate at some future meeting the procedure necessary to recoup the health fund for this or any extraordinary draft thus made upon it."

Complying with your request, I refer you to the public health law, sections 25 and 35, and to section 5 of the general municipal law for authority to municipal corporations to borrow money in anticipation of taxes through which is your medium to recoup the health fund for extraordinary drafts upon it, and through the last mentioned section also other moneys may be borrowed to recoup other funds where revenue from taxes or other sources is not immediately available, viz: Section 25 of the public health law provides that "Every local board of health shall guard against the introduction of such infectious and contagious or communicable diseases as are designated by the state department of health, by the exercise of proper and vigilant medical inspection and control of all persons and things infected with or exposed to such disease, and provide suitable places for the treatment and care of sick persons who cannot otherwise be provided for. It shall prohibit and prevent all intercourse and communication with or use of infected premises, places and things, and require, and if necessary, provide the means for the thorough purification and cleansing of the same before general intercourse with the same or use thereof shall be allowed, etc."

Section 35 provides that "All expenses incurred by any local board of health in the performance of the duties imposed upon it or its members by law, shall be a charge upon the municipality, and shall be audited, levied and collected and paid in the same manner as the other charges of, or upon the municipality are audited, levied, collected and paid, etc."

Section 5 of the general municipal law permits the borrowing by a municipal corporation on temporary loan in anticipation of taxes of the current fiscal year and for the purpose for which such taxes are levied.
An amendment to this section passed in 1916, known as chapter 166, omits the limit of payment to "within eight months."

The local board of health will petition Your Honorable Body at this meeting for the levying and raising of the sum of $7,000 for urgent and emergency purposes in safeguarding the health of our city, and I respectfully urge prompt action thereon.

At the same time it will be necessary to borrow in anticipation of unavailable revenue, other moneys for the proper conduct of government in the sum of at least $20,000 as will be seen from a statement of the city treasurer hereto attached.

Such statement shows that there is now due the several departments and funds from taxes and other revenue to fill the respective budget appropriations the sum of $67,040, to pay which there is now available only $11,000 in taxes collected.

Other revenue, viz: Uncollected taxes, excise and bank share taxes approximating $56,000 will not be received or available until November and December.

In the meantime it will be necessary to raise moneys in anticipation of such revenue, or defer payments, which latter course would not be to the best interests of the city.

I, therefore, recommend that Your Honorable Body provide by resolution for the levying and raising of the sum of $20,000 for general purposes, in addition to the moneys required by the board of health.

It will be observed that the borrowing of this last mentioned sum, being in anticipation of revenue not immediately available, will not affect the tax rate of next year.

Respectfully submitted,
PALMER CANFIELD, JR.,
Mayor.

At the close of the reading of the mayor's letter, Alderman Brown offered a resolution that there be raised, levied and assessed upon the real and personal property and special franchises in the city of Kingston the sum of $27,000, of which amount $7,000 was for the health board and $20,000 for current expenses of the city government, and that the mayor and city treasurer be authorized to issue promissory note or bonds of the city payable on or before March 1, 1917, at a rate of interest not exceeding 4½ per cent per annum.

The resolution was unanimously adopted.

CHURCH PROTEST TO COMMITTEE

Laws and Rules Committee of City Fathers to Consider Protest of St. John's Church Against Erection of Theater Next Door to Church—Dean Hickey Also Protests.

At the regular meeting of the city fathers held on Tuesday evening the resolutions adopted by the vestry of St. John's Church some time ago protesting against the erection of a theater adjoining the church and also requesting the common council to adopt an ordinance forbidding the erection of a theater within 200 feet of a church, and the protest of Bishop Greer to the erection of the theater were read by City Clerk Cummings. Bishop Greer's protest and the resolutions adopted by the church were printed in The Freeman at the time.

City Clerk Cummings also read a communication received from the Rev. John J. Hickey of St. Mary's Church who wrote that he was heartily in favor of the common council adopting an ordinance forbidding the erection of a theater within 200 feet of a church. He wrote that he was in accord with the action taken by the vestry of St. John's Church.

President Crane asked at the close of the reading of the communications if there was any one present who wanted to be heard in the matter and the privilege of the floor was extended to Louis Kegler who said he appeared in behalf of St. John's Church. Mr. Kegler called attention to the fact that the erection of a theater next door to the church would interfere greatly with the church services. He said that frequently funerals were held from the church in the afternoons and he asked how many of those present would care to attend the funeral of a dear friend in the church while next door the turkey trot was being danced. Mr. Kegler said that one might as well hitch a trotting horse with an ox as it would be as appropriate as building a theater next door to the church. He urged that the common council give the matter serious attention and adopt an ordinance forbidding the erection of a theater within 200 feet of any church.

President Crane referred the matter to the committee on laws and rules with the request that they report at the next meeting.

HURLEY.

Hurley, Sept. 6.—The town board and the board of health met in the Town Hall of this village on Tuesday evening. The following resolutions were passed:

"Resolved that the board of health of the town of Hurley does hereby give permission to the public schools and Sunday schools of the town of Hurley, New York, to open on the sixteenth day of September, 1916. This applies to the residents of the town of Hurley, New York, only."

The town board passed a resolution to establish polling places, and they also passed a resolution to grade the grounds about the Town Hall in West Hurley and to set out trees about both town halls. Mr. Lenox has the matter in charge for West Hurley and Messrs. Snyder and Lockwood for this village.

The local grange met at the parsonage Monday. Mrs. G. P. Dumond received final honors of initiation and is now a full fledged member of the grange. A most urgent resolution was passed that all grange meetings should begin promptly at eight o'clock. A delicious luncheon was the final number of the program.

Sunday school of the village church will resume services on September 17.

The matter of opening the village school is left to the trustees by the board of health any time after September 18. The exact date will be announced later as soon as a decision is arrived at.

Mr. Edward and Miss Josephine Smart of New York city were guests at the Smith homestead over Labor Day.

Mr. Eberlein's book "Architecture in Colonial America" is still attracting visitors to our village to see the real old-time Dutch architecture of this section. The popularity is rapidly increasing and the worth of the book appreciated.

Mr. Heinkele was a visitor at Mrs. Maxon's over Sunday where Mrs. Heinkele and Robbie have been staying for the summer.

Domine Von Schlieder is at the Newkirk homestead for a few days.

The threshing outfit has about finished in the village, only one or two places are yet to be visited. The field and cradles have been quite good on the whole.

A unique trip was that of Mr. Ward, Miss Christensen and Miss Collison, who came up to Hurley on a motorcycle from Bogota, N. J., by way of Suffern and Newburgh.

The party started from home at four o'clock on Saturday afternoon and reached Charles Dumond's house at ten that night, a most startling, but pleasing surprise to the household, who had been lone asleep. The trip was about 162 miles long, including 10 miles of a very bad road. The party returned to Bogota on Monday.

Charles Dumond and his sister, Mrs. Maxon and his three guests, Mrs. Swarthout, Mrs. Card and Mr. Foster, who have been visiting them for the past few days, and also Mrs. Winess and Miss Sarah Dumond, all made a most pleasant trip to Lake Mohonk on Monday.

Mr. Williams and his son, Herbert, of Brooklyn, spent Sunday and Labor Day with the Hillier family. Mr. Winters of Kingston was a visitor in the village on Sunday. With him was the Rev. Mr. Larned of Staten Island, who supplies the pulpit of St. John's Church in Kingston during the month of September. Mr. Larned has lately returned from a most successful pastorate in Globe, Arizona.

Mrs. Ostrander, Mrs. Abram Elmerford and Miss Haddock attended the funeral of Mrs. Riseley.

Easy to Overfeed Fish.

Overfeeding proves to be no better for such animals as fishes than for man. The aquarium of the New York Zoological society has more than 3,000 fishes, representing 140 species, and the director reports that in this great collection the death rate has been materially lowered—with a great saving in labor and expense as well as in specimens—by changing the feeding to alternate days instead of every day. An excess of fat resulted from the too generous diet.

Lodgings for Horses.

The East rider is an adept at storing away a new horse or other in his house barn as well as chickens. It is a common sight in the East End at the close of day to see a horse wedged his way through an ordinary street door as if he were a human lodger. Yet the houses have no back yards worth mentioning and no outhouses.—London Chronicle.

Protect Bottle Labels.

If the amateur chemist will paint a thin coating of paraffin over the labels of his reagent bottles with a fine brush he will save much time and bother in replacing labels. The paraffin will prevent any drops of reagent from attacking and badly discoloring the labels. Most reagents do not act on paraffin. The paraffin coating should extend about one-quarter of an inch beyond the edges of the label.—Popular Science Monthly.

TRAFFIC RULES MAY BE REVISED

Representatives of Automobile Club and Chamber of Commerce Give Their Views on the Subject to the Common Council.

At the close of the regular business session of the common council held on Tuesday evening at the city hall a public hearing in the matter of the revision of the traffic ordinances in the city was held. Some time ago the matter of traffic revision was referred to the committee on laws and rules of the council, and they reported Tuesday evening that as they considered the subject one of unusual importance they had invited the Automobile Club of Ulster County, and the Chamber of Commerce and all citizens generally to attend the meeting that evening and discuss the matter.

County Superintendent of Highways James F. Loughran was the first speaker and spoke in behalf of the Automobile Club. He said that the club had considered a list of questions submitted. This list was the same the Rotary Club discussed on August 30, at which time the questions were printed in The Freeman. The first question was in regard to the speed limit and Mr. Loughran said the club favored a limit of 20 miles an hour. Glaring headlights should be prohibited on the brick pavement. On the question regarding whether trolley cars should stop on the near or far side of the street the club believed the cars should stop on the far side. Automobiles should be prohibited from passing trolley cars discharging passengers unless an ordinance is passed compelling the trolley company to allow passengers to alight from the right side of the car only. The club believed that traffic standards should be placed on some of the street corners where needed, but left the designation of such corners up to the city fathers.

The Automobile Club were not in favor of one way streets in Kingston. Making Railroad avenue and Thomas street one way street the club thought feasible.

In regard to autos being prohibited from standing within ten feet of any street corner, he would answer, "yes, under certain conditions, otherwise no."

The club was in favor of prohibiting any vehicle standing near a fire hydrant.

In regard to parking cars in the city Mr. Loughran did not believe the city was large enough nor the police force of sufficient size, to make any such a provision practicable.

The traffic ordinance in regard to slow moving vehicles keeping to the curb should be enforced. Mr. Loughran, in conclusion, said that the club as a body or individually were willing to co-operate with the common council.

R. E. Leighton, president of the Chamber of Commerce, and a member of the police board, said that he was in favor of retaining the present speed limit of 15 miles an hour. The prohibition of glaring headlights on all streets was advocated by him. He said that at an informal meeting of members of the Chamber of Commerce and the good roads committee of that body they had informally discussed the questions which had been submitted to the Automobile Club. He said there was a division of opinion regarding trolley cars stopping on the near or far side of the street. They did not believe that automobiles should be allowed to pass trolley cars discharging passengers. Were opposed to one way streets. Had reached no decision on the question of whether cars should be prohibited from stopping within ten feet of a street corner. Believed that parking of vehicles near a fire hydrant should be prohibited.

Mr. Leighton said that several suggestions had been made to him, and also some had occurred to him personally. They were: That trolley cars should discharge passengers on the right side only. That all vehicles should have the same treatment. That what constitutes a slow moving vehicle should be clearly defined. That horns which make an unusual or offensive noise should be regulated. That pedestrians should be prohibited from crossing in the center of a street unless the block was a long one and then a crossing should be provided in the center of the block.

Policeman Fout said that speaking as a private citizen and a police officer he believed no automobiles should be allowed to park on Fair street near the opera house, and that glaring headlights should be prohibited.

Philip Elting of the Automobile Club said they had obtained the ordinances from other cities and found that many had a sliding scale of speeds. He said a speed of 20 miles an hour on Albany avenue and Albee street would not be excessive while in the congested districts it would. He said that a speed of 15 miles was too low for outlying sections of the city.

Secretary Canfield of the Chamber of Commerce said he had talked with the police chiefs who met here in convention and had found that not many cities had an ordinance prohibiting trolley cars from being passed by automobiles. He said he believed in the ordinance, but thought that something should be done to inform out of town motorists that such an ordinance existed.

Jay Terry said that in regard to the stopping of trolley cars on the near or far side of the street they were not sure. He did not believe that traffic in both directions should be stopped when a trolley car stopped to take on or discharge passengers. He believed passengers should be allowed to alight from the right side of the trolley car only.

Commissioner Charles L. McBride of the board of health said that trolley cars never stopped on the near or far side of the street, but

There being no further discussion the entire matter was referred to the laws and rules committee of the common council, and the city fathers adjourned.

More Labor Than You Thought.

To write a single letter of the alphabet, it is roughly estimated, requires from 200,000 to 300,000 distinct processes, all of which are controlled and directed by the mind. To make the letter O, for instance, takes but a second, yet if all the mental processes involved had to be performed consciously, it would be a task of enormous dimensions. First, the making of the O is willed in the brain, setting in motion the activities of thousands of cells in the hearing areas, the seeing areas, the speech motor areas and the motor areas. Hundreds of nerve threads connecting these cells with various cells and nerve threads in the brain are set to work to organize the movement, while other nerve centers attend to the business of furnishing the requisite amount of blood. As a result, the spinal centers are actuated, and finally the smaller nerves in the fingers direct the forming of the O.

Why Elephants Fear Mice.

It seems almost incredible that so small and harmless an animal as a mouse is able to frighten an elephant almost out of his senses, yet one little mouse in the hay on which they are feeding will stampede an entire herd. In the elephants' native land there are little animals known as chacanas, which feed on a small sort of berry of which elephants are very fond. They live in settlements, something after the manner of prairie dogs, under the berry bushes, and sometimes, when feeding, the elephants trample upon the little towns, and the chacanas in their fright frequently run up the tubes of the elephants' trunks. Their long, sharp claws catch in the flesh, and they cannot be ejected. The more violently the monster blows through its trunk the more firmly the hooked claws of the little animal become imbedded in the flesh, and inflammation and death are the result.

In captivity, therefore, the elephants think they are in danger of the deadly chacanas when they see a mouse and show signs of great fear.

Mashed Balls.

Henry VIII. introduced the ball masque into England. As this form of amusement gradually spread the people began to hire halls and charge admission fees, and the routs of the court were initiated by the origin of the mob.

MISS JEANETTE RANKIN.

FIRST "CONGRESSWOMAN" NOMINATED IN MONTANA.

Republicans in thirty of the forty counties in Montana have named Miss Jeanette Rankin, of Missoula, as their choice for "congresswoman" at large, and in spite of the fact that the state is usually Democratic, she stands a fair chance of being elected. It is said.

Even if she is defeated, she will have the distinction of being the first woman nominated for congress by one of the two leading political parties.

Miss Rankin came out on a dry platform and has the anti-liquor issue back of her. The suffrage element, which is strong in Montana, is also supporting her.

Miss Rankin is well known in New York, where she spent some time as state organizer for the National Woman Suffrage Association. In 1912 she worked hard during the campaign to pass the suffrage amendment through the Montana legislature.

TOPICS NEW YORK IS TALKING ABOUT

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Sept. 6.—Governor Hughes's square-toed denunciation of President Wilson's betrayal of the cause of arbitration and his forcing congress to surrender has heartened the Republicans and dismayed the Democrats. Incidentally it has sent the cold shiver down the backs of some of the pussy-footed among Mr. Hughes's campaign advisers, but then they knew, or should have known, that their candidate was essentially his own man and that his past record showed that he would stand squarely and unequivocally for the right, regardless of political expediency or the anxiety of the timid souls, even in his own party. At Nashville, Mr. Hughes denounced the action of Mr. Wilson and the Democratic majorities in congress as "a surrender of reason to force and tyranny." He said, "I believe in and I stand here firmly for the principle of arbitrating all industrial disputes, and I would not surrender it to anybody in the country. I stand for two things—First, for the principle of fair, impartial, thorough, candid arbitration, second, for legislation on facts according to the necessities of the case; I am opposed to being dictated to either in the executive department or in congress by any power on earth before the facts are known and in the absence of the facts." It was, of course, idle to expect that a man of Gov. Hughes's record would be swayed by motives of political expediency, or even that he would refrain from expressing his views on so important a subject. Mr. Hughes's record as governor of New York abundantly proves him the friend of labor, and his attitude toward the legislation which Mr. Wilson forced through congress may prove that he is far more of a friend now than a chief executive who would give to labor everything it asks on the eve of an election and at other times denounce labor in the unfairest terms.

Democrats Frightened.

It is an open secret at Democratic headquarters that President Wilson's campaign managers realize his action in forcing congress to enact the railway wage-increase, and in repudiating the cause of arbitration is indefensible. Senator Hollis, who has been campaigning for Mr. Wilson, has strongly advised Chairman McCormick to instruct Democratic speakers to omit, in so far as possible, all reference to the wage bill. Mr. McCormick has taken the matter under advisement, but for the present the president's course will not be referred to except, possibly, before essentially labor audiences.

New York Strike Threatened.

New York is again threatened with a strike of all street railway employees. The trouble which was composed a short time ago has again broken out afresh and the employees, heartened by President Wilson's course toward the railway employees, insist now that unless their demands are granted in full they will tie up all the transportation of the city. There is considerable popular sympathy with the subway employees because of the conditions under which they work, especially the bad air in the subways, but a general strike will include the elevated and surface roads as well, where, of course, no such hardships are endured. The fundamental question at issue, however, is whether the Interborough Railway, the largest subway operator, shall formally recognize the union.

Diplomats Confounded.

Latin American diplomats, of whom many are spending the summer in New York and the vicinity, are astonished at the declaration of President Wilson's speech of acceptance that "So long as the power of recognition rests with me the government of the United States will refuse to extend the hand of welcome to anyone who obtains power in a sister republic by treachery and violence." Mr. Wilson referred, of course, to Huerta, but the Latin Americans recall Mr. Wilson's prompt recognition of Col. Benavides as president of Peru, Benavides, who gained power on February, 1914, as the result of assassination and without a shadow of constitutional right. Benavides, it is recalled, led an army against the national palace, drove out President Balmaceda and assassinated the secretary of war and all others who opposed him and, without even pretense of constitutional authority, proclaimed himself president. And President Wilson promptly recognized him, explaining that "expediency dictated the recognition of the provisional government of Peru." Huerta caused Madero and Vice President Suarez to be imprisoned and himself became president under the constitutional provision providing for the succession of the minister of foreign affairs, which Huerta was. Huerta's responsibility for the murder of Madero and his brother has never been established and is doubted by a number of Americans who were in Mexico City at the time. In Hayti, Zamora became president in 1911 by violence and assassination and Mr. Wilson not only recognized him, but employed the armed forces of the United States to compel the people of Hayti to accept him as their president. Mr. Wilson even went further. When the Haytiens revolted against accepting Zamora and against altering their constitution as Mr. Wilson dictated, Mr. Wilson ordered our marines and soldiers to fire on them and six hundred Haytiens were killed and many more wounded and between twenty and thirty Americans were killed. The Latin Americans believe Mr. Wilson will have to find a new excuse for his failure to recognize Huerta.

OSCAR UNDERWOOD

UNDERWOOD PLANS COURT TO

ARBITRATE LABOR DISPUTES.

Washington, Sept. 6.—Senator Oscar Underwood, of Alabama, member of the Interstate Commerce Committee, favors the passage of a law by congress creating a court of arbitration, to which shall be referred all labor disputes.

Senator Underwood urged an amendment to the eight-hour bill giving the Interstate Commerce Commission power to sit as such a court.

"I am a sincere friend of labor, and desire to see it protected in all its rights," says Senator Underwood. "I believe in an eight-hour day, but I do not believe the railroad men will have power to interpret it, and the so called Eight-Hour Bill which we passed on Saturday. The danger that confronts this country will not be settled until congress enacts a general plan that will amply protect all interests in the future, provide for a court of arbitration that will have power to interpret its dict and enforce it, and give the workmen and the managers a body before which all disputes must be submitted for the ascertainment of the facts and an award based on these facts.

system of espionage has been adopted which is designed to intimidate them at the polls. They insist every effort will be made to mark the men who vote the Republican ticket at the Maine election, and that all who voted in the Republican primaries in New Hampshire on September 5 have been marked, and that there are broad intimations that those who are not loyal to the party in power will feel the results when employees are laid off after the election. There has never been an opportunity to exhibit favoritism or show hostility to "those not loyal to the party in power" in the navy department which Secretary Daniels has failed to avail himself of, for which reason the contentions of the operatives in the Portsmouth yard are received with more credence than they might be otherwise. As Col. George Harvey says, "A vote for Wilson is a vote for Daniels."

Underwood Defeated.

Senator Oscar Underwood, charging his party, and inferentially President Wilson, with having betrayed the people by attempting to "revise the tariff upward," went down to defeat when the senate adopted the finance committee's amendment imposing a duty on all goods. His merciless exposure of Democratic inconsistency apparently fell upon deaf ears.

KINGSTON PEOPLE INJURED.

Automobile Accident Near Newburgh Due to Bad Road.

Owing to the narrow road and the culvert being entirely covered with weeds so it could not be seen, Mrs. Fay and Mrs. Eltinge Barnhardt of Kingston and Mrs. Horace W. Elliott of New Paltz were injured in an automobile accident while returning from Orange Lake. In the car were Mr. and Mrs. Horace W. Elliott of New Paltz and Mrs. Fay and Mrs. Eltinge Barnhardt of Kingston. Mrs. Fay has a scalp wound and was badly shaken up. Mrs. Elliott was injured about the shoulders and head. Mrs. Barnhardt has a hole in her forehead and a broken nose. Dr. Mitchell of Newburgh reduced the fracture and on arriving home, they were attended to by Dr. W. E. P. Little. Through the kindness of the cottagers, the car was repaired and they were able to return home in their own car. It is up to the town of Newburgh to look after its roads a little better.

BEST MAN AT A WEDDING.

Time Was When He Used to Assist in Abducting the Bride.

Do you know why the bridegroom's attendant at the wedding is called "best man" and how he happens to be such an important factor at a society wedding? He is supposed to look after the ushers, the carriage, the wedding ring and a host of other things that the fortunate lover could not be expected to concern himself with at such a time. But there was a period in the history of the human family when the best man had other duties than these to perform. It was when there was no church ceremony and when primitive people had come to the conclusion that marriage within the tribe was not good for the race. Then it became the fashion for the young man of marriageable age to go forth in quest of a bride, the daughter of some neighboring tribe.

Perhaps the girls were not entirely unwilling to be captured, but no girl, either ancient or modern, would admit for a moment that she had wandered away from the protection of her male relatives for the actual purpose of being abducted. Even if there was no brother at hand the girl was likely to put up a game fight, and the prospective bridegroom had need of the assistance of a strong muscled friend to aid him in subduing her. There was very little to the ceremony once the girl had been taken to the home of her future lord, but the "best man" was always a honored guest in her home, especially if the marriage turned out well. In many mountainous parts of the civilized world where old customs obtain the "best man" still pretends to assist in abducting the bride.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat

EATING TO LIVE.

Rules by Which Good Health May Be Gained and Retained.

Herewith I give a few general suggestions for those who desire health, writes Edward B. Watman, A. M., in the Nautilus:

No one can have health who eats too much.

No one can have health who eats too often.

No one can have health who eats too many kinds of food at the same meal.

No one can have health who eats when tired, hurried, worried, anxious or excited.

No one can have health who rises late, gulps down a hearty breakfast and then sprints for the car.

When you have eaten do not wonder if it will agree with you. When you begin to wonder trouble begins. Say goodby to it, not expecting to hear from it again. If you fear it do not eat it; if you eat it do not fear it.

Be cheerful at your meals. A sour countenance will give you a sour stomach.

Praise your wife's cooking—if you can conscientiously.

If you go home with a grudge leave it out of doors, where the dog will get it—then shoot the dog.

The majority of people do not know how to live until they are ready to die, and then they are not ready to die because they have not rightly lived.

Genesis of the Playhouse.

Theopis in 536 B. C. acted his plays in a wagon. In 499 B. C., during the time of Aeschylus, creator of drama, the performances took place upon temporary wooden scaffolds, one of which, having collapsed during a representation, the Athenians were induced to build the great theater of Dionysus, calling it the Lenaeon, which was the first permanent stone structure of its kind. It required 100 years to erect it. There was no scenery, but the scene was decorated so as to represent the locality in which the action was going on. Roodens was his structure, but around the building were porticoes, to which the people retreated during rainstorms. Sometimes awnings were used to ward off the sun's heat.

Card Playing.

Card playing began in India in the ninth century. It was introduced into Europe by orientals some time prior to the thirteenth century. Saracens popularized the amusement in Spain and Italy. The game for the game afterward spread to Germany, where it commenced to be indulged in about 1375. Its appearance in France was mentioned in the records of that country in 1382. Heraldic cards were first known in England in 1599.

AUTUMN'S TASK.

What All Good Housekeepers Should Know.

ABOUT FALL CANNING ARTS.

The Value of Accuracy Instead of Quantity—Preserving Really Marmalade and Marmosine Sealing. Suggestions About Vegetables.

First—Fresh fruits and vegetables are first choice, if available. If not, canned goods, homemade or commercial, are a veritable godsend—whole, some, convenient and economical.

Second—Canning means sterilization (killing bacteria and spore by heat, and hermetically sealing so that no invaders can enter the can). Nobody needs a canning powder. They are always dangerous and useless.

Third—There is little if any more danger of illness from canned goods than from fresh. Sterilization is a highly perfected process, and nearly all spoilage makes itself known to sight and taste and smell. The most care must be exercised with milk and meat and fish.

Fourth—Throw away a can that is "swelled" or leaky. This may mean insufficient sterilization or gas formation, and no chances should be taken, though sometimes it means only overfilling.

Fifth—Use a thermometer. Don't guess. Womanly intuition and the rule of thumb would never produce efficiency in a cannery, and they won't do it in the home kitchen.

Sixth—Sulphites and saccharine in canned corn, copper sulphate for green peas, boracic and salicylic acids for easier and surer preserving are all evils of a dead and buried past. The only canned goods chemically preserved to be found nowadays are those put up on the farms and in small towns, where the peddler of the "preserving powders" misleads the unsuspecting home canner into using his anonymous wares.

Seventh—A can of corn twenty-seven years old recently was critically examined by a food commissioner and pronounced to be "good eating." A product that was inferior before going into the can may at one year of age be a poorer product than its elder brother. However, age is not to be despised in canned foods, and they should not be carried over several seasons. The amount of the dissolved increases on standing, condensed milks "lump" and excesses of heat or cold injure quality.

HURRY TRIPS BY ACTORS.

Manfield's Record Quick Jump From New Orleans to Chicago.

Envious persons have been known to poolpoh the actor who thinks that his life is not all cakes and ale. Many years ago we thought the limit had been reached when E. L. Davenport acted as a matinee in Philadelphia and duplicated the performance in New York the same night. Later came the sensational jump of Lawrence Barrett by special train from New York to San Francisco in less than four days and the Joseph Brook-Janaushek leap from Milwaukee to Philadelphia between Saturday midnight and Monday in time for a regular performance in the latter city.

Once Richard Mansfield's energies compassed a hurry trip between New Orleans and Chicago. On a Saturday evening he presented "Julius Caesar" in the Crescent City and on the next succeeding Monday evening he repeated the experience in Chicago. Meanwhile he had traveled a thousand miles and transported all the ponderous impediments of his well remembered production of the Shakespeare classic. This is how it was done:

A special train in ten cars was under steam in New Orleans at the close of the engagement. As soon as a scene of the play was worked off it was conveyed on trucks to the waiting special. When the curtain fell on the last act the players who appeared in it, without changing their costumes, were driven to the railway station, and the train was out of sight of New Orleans before midnight. Right of way was given for the entire distance, and relays of fresh engines were provided from division to division. Thus a new record between the gulf and Lake Michigan was made. The running time for the thousand miles was twenty-three hours.—Kansas City Journal.

FIRE PREVENTION.

How Our Enormous Annual Losses Might Be Reduced.

The average annual loss by fire in America is over half as much as the cost of building the Panama canal. This is an actual loss. Insurance, of course, restores nothing destroyed, but merely passes the hat for the benefit of the individual losers. The loss to the community is total.

But little thought has been given to the communal aspects of the economic system of fire insurance, writes Dr. Maynard M. Metcalf in the Scientific Monthly. It has been viewed chiefly from the standpoint of the individual. Insurance companies' repay to individuals their actual losses, and it is simpler for the individual to gain security against loss by fire by hiring an insurance company to carry his risks than it is for him to prevent loss from fire by building fireproof buildings.

Suppose we should appropriate a quarter of a billion dollars, the amount of a single year's fire loss, to the organization and support of a bureau of fire prevention, calling to the work of this bureau the three best chemists, the three strongest physicists and the three most brilliant engineers in the world, now long would it be before they had found very inexpensive methods of protecting all buildings against fire, however inflammable their construction? The problem is childishly simple beside those which men of science are attacking daily and with success.

How absurd it is that we have fires today! They should long ago have become a thing of the past.

Raisins as Food.

As a producer of energy the raisin is a marvel. One pound of raisins in this respect, according to a doctor, will more than equal "a pound of beef or five pounds of fish, two pounds of eggs, four pounds of potatoes, two quarts of milk, half a peck of apples or a dozen bananas." And the advantage of the sugar in the raisin is that it is almost immediately digested, assimilated and transformed into energy.

Mermaid and King Salmon

Story of Swimming and Yachting in Summer Seas

By CHARLES S. PEASE

The big white yacht Priscilla lay at her mooring buoy, nodding gently as it in approval of the sort of day offered by the sun as he lifted slowly out of the sea on the other side of Sandy Hook.

The door of the stateroom next to that of Mabel Chester opened and closed. In a few minutes there was a patter of bare feet on the deck overhead, and a stairway form in blue trunks shot past her porthole, diving cleanly into the sea. Being a medal swimmer, of course Miss Mabel could not resist having a look to see if this person was acting up to good form.

The young fellow was using a powerful, full overhead stroke and making for a bell buoy not far away.

"He's no novice," said Mabel to herself, "and, oh my, doesn't the water look delicious! What's to hinder my having a swim all by myself? Aunt Virginia Carrolton would likely find some objection if I asked her. Besides, it isn't 5 o'clock yet, and she must be getting her 'beauty sleep.' I couldn't think of waking her on any account, so here goes."

Donning a bathing suit and a close fitting red rubber cap, she tiptoed across the cabin and up the companionway to the deck.

Some sailors were busy forward, and as Mabel appeared a mate came quickly aft.

"I beg your pardon, miss: are you a strong swimmer?"—touching his cap and smiling respectfully.

Mabel was justly proud of her college trophies won at aquatic contests at Wellesley and Magnolia and very graciously answered:

"Don't you think three medals are enough?" and overboard she went in the most artistic of curves, cutting the water as perfectly as a professional. The mate dropped his deferential air and hurried forward.

"Here, Olson, and you, Torwald, unslung the rig. So! Lower away, now, and stand by. Unhook your falls." He said to himself:

"I was a fool to let her go; the flood is just running and strong at that, but what is a man to do with a pretty little guest of Mrs. Carrolton who has taken three swimming medals? Order her back to her room?"

"I don't think I'll go to the bell buoy this time," decided the girl. "Besides, it seems to be occupied by an observant person looking this way." Mabel had a most beautiful time. She rehearsed all the approved strokes and cut up all the keen tricks she knew about with the keen joy of youth and perfect health.

"I think that's about enough for this morning," said Mabel, after awhile.

diamond medal holder, ranged on ahead for the yacht's gangway grating.

"Are you all right, miss?" asked the mate anxiously. "I should not have let you go knowing the tide."

"Yes, indeed; I'm coming around. It was all my fault," assured Mabel. "It would take more than three medals to keep me afloat in this tide-way. I owe my life to you and Mr. Torwald."

"I don't know his name, Miss Chester. He came aboard at midnight from an athletic yacht club's launch. Hoots, but he swims like a king salmon!"

"Oh, Mr. Ferguson."

"Yes, Miss Chester."

"We won't say anything about this, please, and could you arrange to dry my things in the engine room? I'll leave them outside my door in five minutes?"

"Easiest thing in the world, miss; glad to."

Benedict had reached the grating for the mate had not hurried the girl. The burly Scotchman passed Mabel over to Benedict, to whom she gave her little cold hand. She looked her thanks, but she said:

"Ferguson says you swim like a king salmon, and I think so too."

"That's worth more than cups and medals!" And Benedict bowed gallantly.

Half up the gangway Mabel turned as he was pelted for another dip and whispered:

"Mum's the word?"

Benedict put a finger to his lips, nodded three times and disappeared in the blue water.

"Mabel, my dear," said Mrs. Carrolton as the girl looked into her aunt's cabin later, "Arthur Benedict came down last night from Sea Gate, and I want you to be very nice to him. He is a splendid fellow. I have known him since he was in knickerbockers. He is a nephew of your Uncle Henry's business partner and a Yale man."

Young Benedict, in flannels, being duly presented, was asked by his hostess if he was ready for breakfast and promptly admitted that he was as hungry as a shark.

"Don't be taking an early swim, perhaps," he added.

"Arthur, I have always thought you were part fish," observed Mrs. Carrolton.

"Any mermaids down here, Miss Chester?" inquired Benedict blandly.

"Why, did you see one?" asked Mabel, unshaken.

"Thought I did. May have been some big fish, though. He had a red head and silver scales."

"And a tail like a king salmon?" inquired Mabel, very much interested.

"Nonsense!" declared Mrs. Carrolton. "Tell us about that meteoric motorboat of yours, Arthur."

Benedict was at once all enthusiasm and gave an up to date description of all the different kinds of "water bugs" that were to take part in the race of the afternoon. He explained that the ideal toward which the designers were striving was a boat that at high speed would practically skim along on the surface of the water, not plow through it.

"Why, my boat, Zip, will run on a thin layer of ice!"

"What?"

"She's entered in the big race this afternoon."

The Priscilla, gay with bunting and flying the commodore's pennant, was saluted by all the river craft as she steamed up the bay and, passing out through the East river, dropped her anchor at the finishing line for the motorboat contests of New Rochelle.

The Zip was brought alongside, and Benedict took her off for a warming up before the race in which she was to start in half an hour.

PARALYSIS DEATH IN POUGHKEEPSIE

Among the infantile paralysis cases reported on Tuesday was twenty-one new cases in Syracuse, four in Poughkeepsie, and one in Walkkill. One death was reported Tuesday in Poughkeepsie.

Tuesday morning Ogden, the 7 year old son of the Rev. and Mrs. M. Seymour Purdy of Newburgh, died of infantile paralysis. The boy was taken ill on Saturday and on Sunday the boy was unable to stand on his feet. The father is pastor of the Reformed Church in that city.

Five new cases of infantile paralysis were reported in Highland Falls on Saturday and Sunday and other cases are regarded as suspects. The condition in that village is regarded as the worst since the epidemic started, and measures are being taken to prevent the further spread of the disease.

This morning at the office of the state board of health here the reports of eight new cases in the territory covered by the branch office were received as follows:

One at Hazel, Sullivan county; two at Highland Falls, Orange county; one at Ulster county, four being in the village of Highlands and one at Olive.

Drs. Clark, Shelley and Hammer went to Spring Valley this morning to hold a meeting of the doctors and health officers of Rockland county.

Middletown Times-Press of Sept. 5.

No report of four new cases in 'Highlands' has been made from Albany but the Times-Press is located in the same building with the state health department's branch office so the eight new cases in this district may be correct.

AN ISOLATION HOSPITAL.

Poughkeepsie Officials Favor Establishing New $17,500 Building.

Poughkeepsie may have an isolation hospital for the reception of contagious disease cases, such a step being favored by the health officer and aldermen. Speaking before the latter Tuesday evening, Dr. Wilson declared that he believed that "many contact cases and probably many lives" would have been saved had the health authorities had an isolation hospital in which to confine children afflicted with poliomyelitis.

Commissioner Schatz, of the board of health, went even further when he declared that he believed that fully 50 per cent of the cases and deaths which occurred during the epidemic could have been avoided had the early victims been confined.

"You can't fight an epidemic," said Dr. Wilson, "without proper weapons. We have no greater need in Poughkeepsie than that of a contagious hospital. We shall have epidemics in the future, as we have had them in the past, and we must have better than haphazard measures to fight them."

Dr. Wilson estimated the cost of the structure at about $17,500. Each bed in the hospital represents an expenditure of about $2,000, and there should be one bed to every 1,000 of the city's population, according to health department calculations.

Hazed Haigh's Hearing.

Alleging that his hearing had been permanently affected by the hazing he underwent at the hands of fellow students in the New York Military Academy at Cornwall-on-Hudson, Norman Haigh of 30 Amherst avenue, Jamaica, has brought suit for $50,000 against the institution. His mother, Mrs. Cora N. Haigh, has been appointed his guardian to press the suit.

Blakelock Beguneth Anew.

After having spent over sixteen years as an inmate of the Middletown State Hospital, Ralph Albert Blakelock, one of America's foremost artists was today released from the institution and taken to a studio at Lynwood Lodge, Englewood, N. J. where a fine studio has been set up for him. Mr. Blakelock will now take up the painting of the picture expected of him as a member of the National Academy of Design, to which he was elected early last summer.

Ford Upset; One Killed.

George H. Miller was killed instantly and two companions, John P. Daley and Ira Zucker, were injured, one seriously, when a Ford runabout in which the men were riding turned turtle on the Long Pond road near Schuylerville, Dutchess county, Tuesday afternoon. All the men were summer boarders from New York.

HATLESS DELEGATES ARRIVE.

Daughters of America Have An Exciting Experience on Railway.

When several of the delegates to the State Council of the Daughters of America, which is in convention here, arrived in town on Tuesday evening they arrived hatless and coatless and as soon as the Rhinebeck ferry had landed a general raid was made upon the clothing stores in Rondout. The delegates did not leave home without hats and coats as the weather, even in Western New York, is somewhat cool at this time of the year. It was during the trip from Syracuse to Kingston that the separation from the clothing took place. At Syracuse several delegates entered the train and found seats in a West Shore coach which attached to the New York Central train. Between Syracuse and Utica the delegates became hungry and leaving their hats and coats went into the dining coach. At Utica the West Shore coach was switched to a West Shore train and the Syracuse delegation returned from the dining car to find that their hats, coats and baggage were on their way to Kingston by way of the West Shore while they were making the journey over the New York Central. Among those who arrived in town without their baggage and clothing were some of the high officials of the order and upon arriving in town a hurried search was made to find a clothing store in order that they might be properly attired at the opening session of the lodge this morning.

JOSEPH DUNN.

SURGEONS HOPE TO SAVE LEGS OF BOY BITTEN BY SHARK.

New Brunswick N. J. Sept. 6.—Joseph Dunn of New York, who was bitten by a shark in Matavan Creek, on July 12, is reported today to be slowly recovering in St. Peter's hospital here.

His father has received so many letters from all parts of the country asking how the lad is getting along that he has appealed to the newspapers to announce that the boy will recover. The surgeons are making great efforts to save the boy's left leg which was terribly lacerated and mangled by the teeth of the man-eater.

Mrs. Boice's Case Dismissed.

Tuesday morning the board of health withdrew the complaint it had lodged against Mrs. Hewitt Boice and it was dismissed by Recorder Lang. It was claimed Mrs. Boice had a niece visiting her from Floral Park, Long Island, without reporting her arrival, but the board of health having realized they had made a grave mistake in much as the child had been reported they withdrew the complaint and the case was dismissed after having adjourned several times. John W. Eckert acted as Mrs. Boice's attorney. There is not a more public spirited woman in Kingston than Mrs. Boice or one who is more anxious to keep our city free from disease, which makes it the more deplorable that she should have been caused the annoyance of being summoned before the recorder.

Mr. Tullar to Preach.

Grant Tullar, who was one of the revivalists who conducted services in this city last winter, will preach at the morning and evening services at St. James' Methodist Episcopal Church on Sunday, September 17. In the evening there will be a union service of the congregations, which took part in the winter revival, and a large attendance is expected.

Body Found at Cementon.

John Rogers found the body of a man at the dock in Cementon, six miles below Catskill, Monday. Coroner Abbot of Catskill took charge. The man was about thirty years old and wore a blue serge suit and an identification card with the name of H. W. Cox, New Lebanon, was found in the man's pocket. Authorities in New Lebanon were notified.

PROSECUTOR TOOK CHANCES.

District Attorney Hirschberg Then Arrested "Duck Pond" Manager.

District Attorney Hirschberg of Orange county is very fond of ducks and when he heard of a "duck pond" in operation at Midway Park on evening he decided to devote a few hours to diversion. He played the game several times and then took the operator, a man named Sander, son into custody and charged him with gambling. It is said the prosecutor found that the rings used in one game would not go over the larger prizes and that there were no numbers in the "duck pond" corresponding to numbers of the big prizes. He said that children in the primary departments of Sunday schools were encouraged to gamble by these devices.

BURT SHOTTON.

HELPING KEEPING THE BROWNS IN THE RACE.

The St. Louis Browns, with Fielder Jones at the helm, have not given up all hope of grabbing off the American League bunting. With the experience of the other teams who have made a last minute spurt and won the flag, St. Louis, feels that there is yet a chance for the Browns. Among those present, who are right up in front and fighting every minute, is Burt Shotton, the left infielder.

The veteran Burt, who has been with St. Louis since 1911, is battling them out at a 292 clip just now and is playing a wonderful game in the left garden.

Ran Through the Fence.

Fred Houseman was instructing one of his pupils on Sunday to run his new Overland car. The young man, who was well in his wheel, he allowed her full control of the car for a moment, when she was nearing the foot of Glenore Hill, where she permitted the machine to swerve and it decided to run through the state road fence, when it landed in Hell Kull with a broken radiator, smashed windshield and one wheel useless. It was removed later by the wrecker, who had a busy day, as there were three other wrecked or disabled cars to attend to on the Kingston-Saugerties road during the day.

Sixty Days For Paddy Burns.

This morning Paddy Burns was arraigned before Recorder Lang charged with being a disorderly person and was sentenced to 60 days in the county jail. Paddy on Tuesday made an unsuccessful attempt to whip a quarantine officer at the Slightsburgh ferry. This morning Paddy said he had drunk a glass too much, and could not remember what had occurred the day before. He pleaded to be given another chance and said he would take the pledge. The court informed Paddy that he had been given opportunities to take the pledge before.

West Hurley, Sept. 6.—Paul Biesel and brother-in-law, Fred Pietz, who have been spending a few days at the Biesel boarding farm, left this village on Monday evening by automobile for their home in Brooklyn.

Mrs. Otto Biesel and granddaughter, Minnie Biesel, with a party of friends, went by auto sight-seeing in the mountains on Sunday.

104 Dependents in Dutchess.

Dutchess county, according to the report of the child welfare agent, has 104 dependent children being cared for. Eleven out of 22 children who became county charges in the last two months were made dependent through the deaths or disability of their mothers from tuberculosis.

Dance in Grange Hall.

There will be another of the popular dances given in the Grange Hall at Stone Ridge on Friday evening, Sept. 8. Stone Miller will furnish music. Refreshments for sale. Proceeds for the Grange.

THE JOYS OF A RIOT

By M. QUAD
Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate

The cop and I had been driven into a doorway by a shower when he said: "I am going home in about an hour, now, and I'll be one thankful man. I said home, but it was a misnomer. What sort of a home has a patrolman got? Well, it's a place where you go to when you can't go anywhere else. Your wife and children are almost strangers to you."

"I thought it was a pretty good job," I replied. "There's a pretty good salary and your pension when you have reached a certain age."

"Pretty good job," he exclaimed in contempt. "Why, man, a longshoreman or a ditch digger is not as tired when his hours of labor have passed and he is not so banged up at the end of a year. It's walk, walk, walk until there is no more feeling in your feet. It's watch, watch, watch until your eyes need spectacles. It's worry and trouble every hour you're on duty."

"But I have seen a patrolman smile and laugh," I protested.

"So have I, and I smile and laugh myself, but the occasions have been few and far between. I have come into the station house when relieved at my post so exhausted that a man could have pushed me over with his fingers. I have piled into bed and shut my eyes and just got a dream running through my head when the call came. It was a call for us to turn out and be mighty prompt about it. There was a riot going on half a mile away. The waiters in a certain restaurant were on a strike and they were smashing things up in a beautiful manner. A crowd of outsiders was collected and encouraging them and taking part in the smashing. Then, my son, is when you have seen the patrolman smile and laugh. His chance was coming to get even. We smiled and laughed as we tumbled into the wagon and all weariness and all desire for sleep vanished away."

"I said our chance had come to get even. The strikers had made it hard for us, but we want a show at something or somebody to pay off old scores. When you can't strike a man who has buffeted and humiliated you, you turn and kick his dog or somebody else's dog to get even. The horses go away at a gallop."

"We jump out and form in line, and the crowd laughs and hoots at us. We get the word to advance in line, and we select the biggest men and those who are hooting the loudest. The rioters give way for a moment and then hold their ground. Every man of them is armed with a brickbat, cobblestone or stick, and they are just as anxious for a fight as we are. We do not seek to kill, but they are ready to take life."

"Crash! And we are into them. We strike for their heads, their arms, their hands, their knees and any other part which will take the fight out of them. They grapple with us. They seize us by the arms, the legs, and try to grasp our nightsticks. Sometimes there is only one opposing man, sometimes there are five or six climbing over you like a pack of wolves. Even if you were a coward you cannot get away. You have got to stand up and face it and take your medicine."

There is a joy in it, my son, more joy than a soldier feels in battle. The best man is going to win in that row. You are hit with brickbats a dozen times a minute, but you don't feel the hurts until afterward. You are knocked down by some missile striking you in the face, but you don't stop to wipe away the blood—you keep facing on. From your prone position you strike out with your club at the knees and shins around you, and many a man will limp for the next month."

"Up comes more wagons and more men from other stations, and we begin to drive that crowd. Some run away; some seek refuge in doorways; some mount to the roofs and from those vantage points continue to hurl brickbats down upon us. The row lasts half an hour. At the end of that time some rioter raises a call, and the street is cleared in a minute—no, not cleared. There are fifty men down and in need of a surgeon's care. They are the wounded of the battle. Every one has shed his blood for what he deems is the principle of the thing. If you could see those fifty laid out side by side, with three or four surgeons rendering first aid, you would be shocked."

"And how about us? Some have to be carried to the wagon and bundled in most any way, and those who have escaped the lightest have a bad limp at least. There is hardly a uniform that is not ripped and torn and tattered. The men have bruised faces, bleeding hands and bruised bodies. Every one of us needs the surgeon's care as soon as we reach the station. There is no boasting about what this man or that man has done, but there is victory in the eyes of every one. We have paid off old scores. We have got even for fifty humiliations. We get leave of absence for three days, and then we are to be back and as good as new. I tell you, my son, curious as it may seem to you and others, that the greatest joy in a patrolman's life is to be one in a riot like that."

There was a silence of two or three minutes, and the shower passed away, and the cop added:

"Well, I must be tramping the old beat again or the roundsman will sneak up on me. Oh, there are a few jobs in a patrolman's life, and one of them is when he has to fight for his life and when he knows he is putting up a scrap which the bravest man on the force could feel proud of."

PHILLIES THREE MOST EXCELLENT HURLERS

PAT MORAN'S STAR PITCHING TRIO.

The Phillies have long been in need of a good left-hander. Eppa Rixey appears to be filling the bill this year. Eppa started out impressively in 1912, but later fell off greatly in his work. This season Rixey started out as if he was going to equal or beat his record of 1912. He has pitched consistently good ball all year, and has gained the poise and confidence to make a steady winner. Rixey is a wiry athlete and physically competent to do powerful work. As he is doing better than any other pitcher on the staff excepting Alexander and Demaree, Pat Moran has about decided to use the portside in every series. A winning southpaw who can stand lots of work will mean much to the Phils.

SPEAKER IS A DEMON ORATOR

Hurries From Ball Yard to Banquet Hall and Tells Students Baseball Will Help Them.

In addition to being considerable hitter at the plate Tristram Speaker is a demon orator. He recently spoke for the benefit of an advertisers' association in Cleveland, rushed to the ball park, played a game, ate and beat it to a lodgeroom for his second oration of the day.

Arising the next morning he breakfasted and at noon entertained East high school pupils with a discourse in which he drew a parallel between school life and baseball. After his speech the Texan hiked to the ball yard and pastimed through fourteen innings in a deadlocked game.

GIANTS FAVOR COLLEGE MEN

Former Yale Football Star is Latest Acquisition—Stafford and Smith Also Signed.

College stars are swelling the ranks of the Giants these days. "Pie" Way, former football and baseball star at Yale, is the latest to join the club. Infielder Stafford, former captain of the Tufts nine also reported recently and George Smith, star pitcher for the Columbia team, is now a member of McGraw's squad.

Way is a pitcher. He worked an exhibition game against the Giants last summer and impressed Manager McGraw with his work. Way achieved wide fame on the gridiron last fall by grabbing a fumble and running for a touchdown that won the game from Princeton.

Stafford comes with a record of extra heavy hitting with the Tufts team. He played four years with the club, and captained it during the past college season.

Smith starred on the mound for Columbus, and is highly recommended by Coach Andy Coakley and Mike Donlin, who have watched his work closely.

YANKS' PITCHER IS WONDER

Frank Baker is Loud in Praise for Jack Enright, Who Hurled in Independent Circles.

The New York Yankees have a pitching prospect under cover who will be a wonder, according to Frank Baker. His name is Jack Enright, and he pitched in Pennsylvania independent circles last season. Before that he played ball with a college team at Chestertown, Md. Manager Donovan has sent him to Newark of the International League for seasoning.

MILTY

PIGEONS SELECT OWN MATES

Breeders Should Be Selected With Definite Object—Inbreeding Is Not Desirable.

Pigeons usually mate in pairs and remain constant through life, although the mating may be changed if desired. Unmated pigeons, especially males in the loft, are a source of much trouble, and usually prevent profitable results. Pigeons are usually mated at from five to nine months of age. There are two methods of mating, natural and forced. Under natural mating the pigeons usually are allowed to select their own mates, which is indicated by the male billing and driving the female. Experienced breeders, however, are occasionally deceived by their actions in selecting sex. In forced mating, as in natural mating, the breeders should be selected with a definite object, using males strong in points in which the females are weak. It is sometimes advisable to break up the mating between old pigeons and young birds, although these pairs often give good results. Where matings produce undesirable qualities, it is necessary to remate or cull out the flock. Continued close inbreeding is not desirable and many try to avoid any inbreeding. Where pigeons are banded, the female on one foot and the male on the other, it is fairly easy to regulate inbreeding.

MOST POPULAR MARKET DUCK

Pekin Is Favored for Marketing While Indian Runner Takes Lead for Egg Production.

Duck raising is one of the most profitable branches of the poultry business. For market purposes alone the Pekin duck is popular. For eggs the Indian Runner takes the lead. Ducks are never troubled with lice, neither do they have cholera or flu.

Pekin Duck.

They lay a large egg. These eggs have a very fine flavor. You will find the eggs not as fertile if you let the ducks grow thin. Give the ducklings plenty of air and stuff them with feed. Sprinkle and over their feed as this will be a sure way of them getting as much as they need. Watch that the ducks have suitable attention and regular feed. A few well cared for pays better than too many that are slighted.

CHICKS RELISH GREEN FEED

Fresh Vegetables Should Be Supplied to Youngsters—Composition of Good Mash.

The little chicks must be supplied with a quantity of green feed or fresh vegetables after they are a few days old. A good rule would be to have one-third of the ration green feed, one-third cracked grain and one-third mash. Ground oats, bran and middlings in equal parts, make a very good mash for chicks. There is nothing magic or medicinal about the prepared chick feeds. Chicks that become injured, and especially if in a manner to become bloody, should be promptly removed from the brooder. Chicks are strong, but caustic if once started, and will quickly tear to pieces an injured chick if they once get a taste of the blood. Suffer far over any injured or bleeding spots.

FRANK SLATER
REPORTED KILLED

A letter to The Freeman from West Haverstraw conveys the intelligence of the shocking death of Frank P. Slater, a boilermaker of this city, who, the letter states, was blown to pieces by the explosion near West Haverstraw on Monday. The head was completely severed and the body was blown into the river. The letter said that the body had not been recovered and that the river is being dragged. John Crommer was the name signed to the letter. William Slater, a brother of Frank, said today that he had heard nothing of any accident or injury to his brother. He said that Frank had been working near Haverstraw on some gas tanks for a big factory. He did not know the name of the firm. Frank, the brother said, is 23 years old. Mrs. Barbara Slater, their mother, resides on Foxhall avenue. There are four sisters and another brother.

DAY'S DOINGS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, Sept. 6.—House met at 10 o'clock. Senate met at 11 o'clock.

House took up miscellaneous legislation.

Senate took up corrupt practices bill.

Joint conference committee considered differences between the two houses on the administration revenue bill.

The house at 1:45 adjourned until noon on Thursday.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

William F. Benedict, a well known Civil War veteran, died at his home in Middletown on Monday, aged 73 years. Deceased was born near Wurtsboro and served in the 143d Regiment, New York Volunteers.

George Collingwood, one of Poughkeepsie's leading business men and a life-long resident, died early Tuesday morning in his apartments in the Nelson House after an illness of several weeks. He was 57 years old and prominent in the social life of the city.

John F. Donovan, the state road contractor, died Tuesday night at his home, Schoenag's Hotel, Glasco, after a lingering illness. One of the last of his road contracts was the southern portion of the Saugerties-Catskill road. He is survived by a wife and one child.

News of the death of John Rogers at Hollywood, a suburb of Los Angeles, Cal., has just reached his relatives in this city. Mr. Rogers lived in Kingston for many years and owing to his genial disposition made many warm friendships here, which he cherished all through his life. He went to California some years ago and took up his residence there, owing to the delicate health of his wife, who was Juliette Terry, a sister of the late Albert Terry and Mrs. Columbus Van Deusen of this city. Mrs. Rogers is still living. The news of Mr. Rogers' death will be received with regret by his old friends in Kingston.

Theodore Kistner, for a number of years town constable and village policeman of Saugerties, died Tuesday night at St. Peter's Hospital, Albany, where he was taken on Saturday for a second surgical operation. He had been at the Benedictine Sanatorium in the early part of the summer for several weeks for an operation and treatment which did not relieve his ailment. On Monday an operation was performed by Dr. Elling at St. Peter's Albany Hospital. In his weakened condition he did not survive the shock. During his incumbency of the offices mentioned he proved himself a fearless, capable and efficient officer. He is survived by a wife. The funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Mrs. Albert Lounsbury, a lifelong resident of the town of Rochester, died very suddenly on Saturday, September 2, in her 71st year. The news of her death came as a great shock to the community where she was so well and favorably known. The funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon from the Leihardt M. E. Church of which she was a member. Surviving are the husband and one son, Frank Lounsbury of Monticello, five sisters, Mrs. Eliza C. DeWitt, Mrs. Henry D. DeWitt, Mrs. Amelia Marple, of Leihardt, Mrs. Moses Avery of West Hurley, Mrs. Charles Brown of Cornwall, and three brothers, William and John of Leihardt and Jacob Hornbeck of Mettuchahona.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, Sept. 6.—How far wrong was the amateur who once remarked that most folks are drawn to automobile speedway races by the hope of seeing someone killed?

It is the thrill it generates; the science it calls into play or the pleasure it affords that usually draws crowds to athletic contests. But long distance speedway racing is the one so-called sport that is a most devoid of sensations; it is a contest where the spirit of contest seems almost totally absent; a spectacle that provokes no real excitement after the first few minutes. It becomes a monotonous thing to watch long before the end has been reached.

And yet year after year, thousands of persons attend those speedway races. True the major portion of each crowd witnesses such races for the first and last time. It comes to see what can be seen—and it never comes back. Its place it takes the next year by another "once-but-no-more" crowd. But there are "repeaters." Some persons do go back year after year to see the speed demons in their races against time—and against death.

Distance Speedway Races Bore.

Automobile road racing has its thrills. Dash races on a speedway creates some real shivery feelings along the spinal column. Both are real contests where the man element actually enters; where a race is a race. But these 100 or 200 or 300 mile races around a speedway are nothing but processions, little more than tests of motors and tires; a tiresome exhibition to an extreme.

And yet there are some people who attend all the big speedway events. What draws them there? Was the man right? It is that the morbid hope of seeing a frightful smashup urges them through the gates and into the stands?

The first five or six laps of a speedway race sometimes afford a bit of excitement. The cars get away in a bunch and although they begin to string out for a lap or two, it sometimes happens that two or three of the benzine chariots bunch for several more laps and evoke a mild cheer from the crowd as they thunder past the stand. But rarely do the initial bunches last more than a few laps. Some cars forge into a 100 or 200 yard lead and soon all the cars are divided by similar distances.

"Race" Becomes Parade.

And from then on you sit back for an hour, or two, or three, according to the distance of the race and watch the parade; the contest-less race. You hear a whirr, a rumble, a car flashes into view, it hums and pounds in front of you for a few seconds—and is gone. Soon another rumble is heard, another car zip into sight—and then it, too, has started on another lap.

And so it goes. The cars, after the inaugural five or ten miles rarely are bunched, no bunches occur, the riding. The race has become nothing but a tiresome sight of passing cars.

You watch the score-board, because it is your only method of ascertaining the positions of the cars after the first ten or fifteen miles. You will note that Hinky-Dee is a lap ahead. A while later it will show him leading by two laps. And then, after another 15 or 20 minutes, the board may show that Hinky has made it four laps, or that someone has come along tied Hinky for the lead.

The uninitiated in auto racing naturally assume that such conditions are brought about by some miraculous spirits. But rarely is it the case. The lead changes or is increased merely because one or another of the drivers has been forced to the pits by motor trouble, a wounded tire or a loose rod or other car ailments.

No Impression of Real Speed.

Perhaps you think that the business of travelling at a rate beyond 100 miles an hour would be thrilling enough. But there isn't even a tingle in that. Speedways destroy the true impression of actual speed. Unless you were told that the car and its driver were moving along at a clip close to two miles per minute you never would guess it. The tracks are so smooth and so perfect in construction that there hardly is the semblance of a bump as the cars whirl around. They run with the precision and rhythm of a piston rod.

And who will say that an active piston rod is an exciting spectacle? Some folks, seeing their first speedway race, often have remarked: "Why those cars do not seem to be going any faster than a diver taxi trying to make a train through a crowded thoroughfare." And their opinion is almost unanimous, strange as it may seem.

Last spring a distance contest was staged at the new Sheephead Bay Speedway. Somewhere along about the 30th mile Carl Limberg's car shot to the top of the track, smashed into the rail and Limberg and his mechanic were killed.

And then a woman, in the grandstand, after the initial gasp, turned to another and said almost with a show of elation: "At last! I have seen a smash-up!"

Was that autoist right when he said that folks go to Speedway races because they hope to see a killing?

If One, Why Not the Other?

Little Mabel had just recovered from an attack of the chicken pox. "Well," she informed her mother, "I'm glad that is over. Now what do I have next, turkey pox or duck pox?"

Hot Liners.

(By Frank G. Menke.)
The Tigers didn't play yesterday, but they gained a point on the Red Sox, because the latter split even in a double-header with the Athletics.

After suffering five straight defeats at the hands of the Phillies the Dodgers took their revenge on the Giants and are again at the head but tied with the Phillies.

Walter Johnson must think his team still has a chance. He shutout the Yankees with two hits.

The Phillies passed the Braves when Alexander pitched them to victory in the first game. The second game went five innings without either side scoring. Old Jap won.

The Reds' bats were active against the Cubs and Tinker's men suffered another defeat.

Storms Felt in Sea's Depths.

That the sea may be disturbed by gales to a depth equal to 350 times the height of the waves produced is a conclusion reached by the United States hydrographic office from laboratory experiments. At a depth of nearly 4,000 feet, an ocean cable crosses a depression in the ridge separating the basins of the North Atlantic and the Norwegian sea, and this cable is known to have been moved in storms. Violent tempests must be felt even at much greater depths.

Strength Test.

A party of English officers serving at the Dardanelles made a wager one day as to which animal the leader, a goat, or a Turk. To settle the wager a goat was brought into the colonel's tent, and the colonel faluted. When the colonel was revived they brought a Turk into the tent, and the goat faints.

CLOSING GAMES IN BIG LEAGUES

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, Sept. 6.—The Tigers and the Phillies have been made the favorites in the pennant battles in their respective organizations by the "Bookies."

The general opinion today seems to be that both the Red Sox and the Dodgers who led their leagues for so long have shot their bolt. And at the same time those folks feel that the Tigers and the Phillies both have started spurts that will inject them into the world series.

The amazing dash of the Phillies which carried them in less than a week from a poor third to the crest of the league has fanned into a fiery flame of the hope for another championship in Quakertown. And in the American, the Tigers seem to have the person who does his squinting.

The long-at-home star of the Phillies enhances their chances greatly. Alexander just now is pitching as he never pitched before, with Rixey doing stellar work and Mayer and Demaree hurling beyond their normal form.

The Phillies still have 29 games to play—and 19 of them are at home. If they maintain their at-home winning percentage, it is hard to figure how the Braves or Dodgers can nose them out.

The Braves loom up as the most formidable foes of Put Moran's pets. The Dodgers may come again in the final drive, but they must come soon or they will be distanced. If the Braves steady down quietly they have a golden opportunity. If they don't, good night.

The awful slump of the Red Sox during the past two weeks has been one of the surprises of the season. The reason for the drop, of course, is apparent when one studies the recent batting averages of the Sox. And so we come to the Tigers. Up to the present moment the Jugglers have won 25 out of 31 of their at-home games against the eastern clubs. And before the season ends, they are to play 13 more games against the easterners in their own ballpark. If the Tigers maintain the past average—five victories to one defeat—they will be "in;" the pennant will fly from the Detroit peak.

The White Sox still have a chance; a fair one. But they must show more consistency in play before they can be regarded seriously, despite the fact that they, too, are close upon the heels of the Red Sox warriors.

As for the Browns, the Yankees, the Indians? Well, it seems that their dreams of 1916 never will come true.

Credit.

Credit is the prolific parent of extravagance, and the piper has been sharp enough to find it out. He suffers those who dance to pay him some other day, with the result that they dance a good deal more than they otherwise would. Often they dance more than they can afford, but that's nothing to the piper.—Life.

That is a good book which is opened with expectations and closed with profit. It is a wise book that is good from title page to the end. The masterpiece, fairly mastered, prepares the reader to master the great pieces of literature. The encyclopedia of details may be left for less occupied and thoughtful moments.—Amos Bronson Alcott.

TY-COBB, THE "GEORGIA PEACH" IS CRAWLING UP.

You can't keep a good man down, at least if his name is Ty Cobb and he happens to play on the Detroit Tigers. Cobb is slowly but surely climbing up in the list of batting averages. Figures compiled last week show that Cobb is but nine points behind the mighty Tish Speaker. So far this season Cobb has scored eighty-eight runs, which leads the list and he also holds the base stealing lead with forty-eight pilfered sacks.

Wonder Workers are Coming.

Mlle. Mercedes Talma and her troupe of illusionists will furnish a mystifying entertainment at the Kingston opera house next Tuesday night. They are the leading prestidigitators on the American stage and have been playing in all the big cities to crowded houses. At Birmingham they played three days and gave a like number of performances at Albany. Some idea of the immensity of the program may be gained from the fact that two carloads of stage properties used in the various acts are carried by Mlle. Talma and her troupe. These properties include live lions, pigeons, ducks, chickens and other live stock. There is also a large compartment in the car used for the money which mysteriously appears from the air. Mr. LeRoy, the leading illusionist of the company, performs an amazing feat by transplanting himself into the interior of an iron cage and then releasing himself from his place of confinement. Members of the company climb ropes and disappear in the air together with the ropes, and the entire entertainment is so completely mystifying as to form one of the most interesting stage performances now being afforded to the public.
